The Human aspect on a heated day

Pa: Roland W. Peterson

The elderly man was dressed in one color.
From the cap he wore to his shoes, all were the same color, It looked like the poor man could not walk.
Suddenly a group of people, all wearing clothes of a different color, rushed to his aid.
They helped him to stand up and to walk to the voting booth.
And so the elderly man could make use of his right to vote.
When I saw this, my heart opened to those who gave a helping hand.
If they were on a list I would have voted for them.
This beautiful example I will always remember.